Billy Sunday's Ten Commandments

The following vivid phrases are collected from some of the most unique and characteristic points in Mr. Sunday's sermons:

1. THOU SHALT NOT Gossip.
 There are three ways to spread news—telephone, telegraph and tell-a-neighbor. The devil is so afraid of some of you women he wouldn't get within twenty feet of you.
2. THOU SHALT NOT COVET.
 Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's cook, nor his automobile, nor his rubber tired carriage, nor his private yacht. Many a man would like to have his neighbor's wife. You let her alone.
3. THOU SHALT NOT TALK.
 I'm against that rotten, licentious, hell-begotten device that sends men aside to hell than anything else, I'm in favor of everything the devil is against and I'm against everything the devil is in favor of.
4. THOU SHALT NOT BE CRISKEY.
 Some would-be Christians are so stingy that they would steal flies from a blind spider. There are others so mean that they sling through their noses to save the wear and tear on their false teeth.
5. THOU SHALT NOT HAVE TOO MANY DEBTS.
 It's hard to find a real sinner, and a man doesn't want to marry a girl that's been pawned over by every young buck in the community. The Lethbridge hotel girl that sits in the dark parlor until all hours of the morning with one buck after another is on the way to perdition.
6. THOU SHALT NOT BE CONCERNED.
 A concerned man is like a cheap-plate restaurant where everything is in the window and nothing on the table but hot air. Self-concern will always be a nuisance around your neck.
7. THOU SHALT NOT DRINK.
 The man who says he can drink and let it alone, lies. No man ever intended to become a drunkard. Every drunkard started out to be simply a moderate drinker. If you believe you can leave it alone, why don't you?
8. THOU SHALT NOT USE.
 One of the things that show the foundation of a man's character to be rotten is to hear him say that a profane man may too far in any language.
9. THOU SHALT NOT DOUBT THY DEARS.
 Some haven't religion enough to pay their debts. Would that I might have a look and for every debt that you left unpaid I might look off a piece of clothing. If I did some of you would be left with only a cell and collar and a pair of socks.
10. THOU SHALT NOT FLIRT.
 Society takes note of flirtation on the street. It waits until the girl has lost her virtue and then sends her door in her debt. I wish I could make a girl who flirts see herself as others see her. If you make eyes at a man on the street he will pay you back.

Mail for Prisoners of War

1. Letters (letters should be left open) postmarked and postal parcels should be addressed as follows:
 (a) Rank, initials, name.
 (b) Regiment or other unit.
 (c) British, (or Canadian, French, Belgian or Russian) prisoner of war.
 (d) Place of internment.
 (e) Germany.
2. Place of internment should be stated wherever possible, and parcels cannot be accepted unless place of internment is stated. All addresses must be in ink.
3. Communications should be limited to private and family news and to necessary business communications, and should not be sent too frequently.
4. No references to the naval, military or political situation or to naval or military movements and organizations are allowed. Letters or postcards containing such references will not be delivered.
5. Friends of prisoners of war are advised to send postcards in preference to letters as postcards are less likely to be delayed. If letters are sent they should not exceed in length two sides of a sheet of newspaper and should contain nothing but the sheet of newspaper. On no account should the writing be crossed.
6. Letters cannot for the present be accepted for registration.
7. Postage need not be paid either on letters or parcels addressed to prisoners of war.
8. No letters shall be enclosed in parcels, and newspapers must not on any account be sent. So far as is known there is no restriction on the contents of parcels; tobacco may be sent and will be admitted duty free, but food stuffs of a perishable character should not be sent. Parcels should not exceed 11 lbs. in weight.
9. Remittance cannot be made by money-order to prisoners of war. Instructions as to how to proceed can be obtained from Postmasters of Arriving Port or Letters can be given and that the Post Office accepts no responsibility. In any case, considerable delay may take place and failure to receive an acknowledgment should not necessarily be taken as proof that the letters and parcels have not been delivered.
10. So far as is known, prisoners of war in Germany are allowed to write letters or postcards from time to time; but they may not always have facilities for doing so and the fact that no communication is received from them need not give rise to anxiety.

Blaimore Red Cross

NOTICE—Sewing meeting on Wednesday afternoon of Tuesday, the 3rd inst., from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock, in the hospital rooms. Be not in any in well-doing.

Truly glad we received this week in the form of contributions and memberships to the amount of $28.00.

The tea given in aid of funds on Wednesday afternoon of this week netted $8.25.

It is with deep regret we hear that one of our members—Mrs. Langer—has been taken to the front of the loss of her son. The most sincere sympathy is extended to her in this bereavement.

The following shipment of hospital supplies is being forwarded to the Calgary depot this week:

- 70 bed pads
- 4 muslin jackets
- 10 surgical slits
- 28 wash rags
- 9 bedclothes bags
- 47 T bandages
- 112 hot-water bottle covers
- 115 rolled bandages
- 8 suits pajamas
- 30 triangular bandages
- 82 hospital handkerchiefs
- 4 pillow slips
- 17 pairs socks.

The Executive Committee wish to thank Mrs. Warner and her sewing class for assistance in the making of bandages, knitted wash-rags, etc.

Donald Randolph McIvor, of Cowley, has been appointed a notary public.

There is much talk about internment enemy aliens. Some folks think that if the word were spelled with an "r" in place of the second "a" it would about fit the case.

The closing of the North Sea by the British has thrown out of employment a hundred thousand English fishermen, together with tens of thousands of German, Dutch, Danish, Scandinavian, Belgian and French fisherfolk.

Second University Company Canadian Expeditionary Force

The second university company, the organization of which was authorized by the Militia Department on April 24th has made substantial progress towards completing its establishment. The company under the command of Captain George C. McDonald has its headquarters at 382 Sherbrooke Street West, where about 110 men are already enrolled and in training.

In addition to this, two officers—Mr. D. M. Smith and Mr. D. G. Haggarty of the Toronto University C. O. T. C., have been appointed to look after recruiting in Toronto. A number of men have already been sworn in there and it is expected that before June 1st Toronto University will have furnished a full complement of about 60 men.

The full complement of all ranks required is 225, so that it is likely that the company will be up to its full strength at an early date. The rank and file are a splendid type of the young educated Canadian being recruited from university graduates or undergraduates, or men of a similar class. They are drawn from nearly every part of Canada.

groups having been brought from Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Winnipeg as well as from the eastern provinces. A number of men with C.O.T.C. certificates have enlisted in the ranks.

In the training of this unit special attention will be given to further instruct men studying for officers certificates. A great many of the men have received the benefit of the training at the C.O.T.C. Camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake, which was held from May 2nd to 15th.

When the company has been brought up to full strength it will probably be moved to one of the permanent camps to undergo further training before going to the front.

The first university company ("D" Co. 28th Battalion C.E.F.) which has been selected as a draft to reinforce the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry is at present in camp at Niagara-on-the-Lake and will probably sail for England inside of the next fortnight.

The Way to Win

"Strike" while the iron is heated,
 "Panic" and the iron is cold.
 If you strike too late on a hardened plate
 The world will never hold.

"Seek" and success will follow;
 "Wait" and it passes by.
 Be quick to grasp, then hold it fast,
 And trust for a better try.

"Work" and the world works with you,
 "Loaf" and you loaf alone.
 This strenuous world's continuous whirl
 Offers no place for the drone.

"Lie" is an undertaking;
 "Truth" is a battle fought;
 So let life's light shine the night
 With the deeds that you have wrought.

Prisoners From Submarines

The Germans maintain that orders are not usually an excuse, but a reason for action, for any emergency, even for the wholesale capture of innocent life. That is a view which is founded on English law is founded, upon the principles of that morality. Whatever may be the view of German jurists, it is a well established rule of our law that superior orders are no defence in the case of a soldier who has committed a crime. If he shoots a man and has no better defence, he is liable to be tried and, on conviction, to be hanged. Responsible opinion in this country has not, however, demanded that submarine prisoners should be brought to trial for these acts, or that they should be treated with harshness.—London Times.

H. G. Wells writes in the London Daily Mail: The showing of the industrial and intellectual classes in Britain has, in fact, been as poor as the response of the common people has been admirable. The elementary schools have produced pluck, cheerfulness, willing patriotism in unlimited abundance; they have swamped the recruiting offices and all our resources of weapons and equipment the public schools, though they have been patriotic enough, have produced no equivalent leadership and mental vigor. We must have schools that will fill our children's minds with the habits and understanding of France, India and Russia, and of the great world outside gentle British life. We must have schools which have swamped the recruiting offices and all our resources of weapons and equipment the public schools, though they have been patriotic enough, have produced no equivalent leadership and mental vigor.

Occupation of Farming

No Business Offers More Gain or Satisfaction Than Farming
Farming is a most desirable employment. No business offers so much independence. The farmer is his own master. The thoughtful farmer plans his work and informs himself about the most scientific methods. Farming is a work that requires and cultivates intelligence. The day is past when a youth unfitted for anything is thought of as being a farmer. A farmer's work is in the sunshine, the pure air and invigorating winds. He is not cooped up among brick walls with only narrow openings from which he may get glimpses of the sky. The farmer of today can have all the conveniences enjoyed by the dweller in the city and some luxuries unobtainable by the city man. In farming there is a wide scope for ambition. There is opportunity for a man with bare hands and empty pockets to begin as laborer and attain a competence and position in which he may take a just pride. Intelligent labor is needed as in any other business. Get back to the soil and gain in strength of body and character. The farmer of today is a man of what the farm offers. No business offers more to the man who has no special employment than agriculture. To get in touch with the old earth and know the value of the soil beneath his feet is to gain in self-respect and feel nearer to God.—Milwaukee Journal.

Austrian Prisoner Taken to Siberia Can Talk With Russians in Esperanto
The Prager Tagblatt prints a letter from an Austrian soldier made prisoner of war by the Russians, who tells of the great use a knowledge of Esperanto has been to him in making known his wishes when his own language failed. His letter is dated "T. Siberia." "I tell you I fell into the hands of the Russians," he writes, "I first became aware of the existence of a neutral language. The little green star which I always carry on my person elicited the curiosity of the Russians. It was called to the attention of a Russian officer, whose face lighted up when he saw it and who immediately asked me in Esperanto. He asked me for news, wanted to know if it was true that the whole Austrian army had been defeated in Galicia, as reported by the Russian newspapers. He told me the French had reached the Rhine. When I told him there was no truth in it he was very much surprised. "Thanks to this officer I received excellent treatment and was sent to Moscow after a few days. When I arrived there the word had gone before me that I was a student of Esperanto, and soon three officers called on me and were delighted to be able to speak in their mother tongue with a stranger. I learned from these officers that the minister of war was decidedly favorable to this language and that many of the officers had been studying it. "Later I was sent to Siberia. It was an almost endless journey through the cold and snow. Upon my arrival here I found a group of students of Esperanto—some Russians, some Hungarians and a few Italian and German. We all are able to hold conversation which otherwise would not be possible. While this section of Siberia was its desolation and inconveniences, still we manage to enjoy ourselves fairly well and live in the hope that we will soon be able to return to our Fatherland."

In a Bayonet Charge
Private Describes His Sensations Before and After
"I believe I have described my feelings in a previous letter as to a bayonet charge; before you actually make the charge your nerves get all on edge and when you are worked up to a very high pitch, verging on madness; you lose sight of everything but the object in view—the enemy. But when I had plunged my bayonet into the first German, came upon, I felt sick and dizzy for a moment, but that soon passed away because others were coming on, and I had to look after my own skin, and again I lost sight of everything and became possessed with the lust to kill. From beginning to end, the first charge I was in lasted only ten minutes, and then what a change! When the reaction set in I was trembling like a jelly fish; my mind imagined what I like; you practically go crazy and don't know what is taking place, only you know you have to either kill or be killed."

The Submarine

For the Greater Operations of a Naval War the Battleship is Necessary

A few years ago the great question was whether armor plate or ships' guns would, in the end, prove the stronger. As the guns increased in size and their projectiles gained in penetration, armor grew thicker, and called to its aid alloys that gave it the powers of resistance. The contest seems to have resulted in a victory for the guns. At present no warship, however well protected, can withstand the impact of projectiles from the heaviest naval guns. Today the contest is between the battleship and the submarine. Not long before the present war broke out, one of the foremost naval authorities of Great Britain startled many circles by declaring that the day of the dreadnought was past, and that the submarine was to be the victor in future battles on the sea. He found many who agreed with him, but also many who took the opposite view. At times during the past half year events have seemed to confirm his prophecy, but the issue is still doubtful.

Submarines have indeed torpedoed and sunk battleships, but on the other hand several submarines have been rammed and destroyed—in one or two cases by the action of merchant vessels. The new craft have an advantage in being able to conceal themselves, and thus to make a sneak attack before their presence is suspected; but they are necessarily slow of movement, especially in the open sea, and their high speed can run away from them, rather than attack them. Moreover, in their very construction there is an element of danger to the crew, even if they escape the enemy they are by no means certain to survive the perils of the sea. Thus to make a sneak attack before their presence is suspected; but they are necessarily slow of movement, especially in the open sea, and their high speed can run away from them, rather than attack them. When Troops Took to Drink
In his latest protest against the issue of rum rations, Sir Victor Horsley states that the habit of spirit drinking was first contracted by our troops during Marlborough's campaign in Flanders. As a matter of fact, they acquired this habit as far back as 1588, when sent to the Netherlands against their Spanish masters. In his "Annals of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth," Camden writes: "The English, who, of all the northern nations, have been till now the moderate drinkers, and most commended for their sobriety, learned in these Netherlands wars to take a taste of wine, with immoderate drinking, and by drinking others' healths to impair their own, and since the victory of the Dardanelles has so diffused itself over the whole nation that in our days it was vain to be restrained by severe laws."—Pall Mall Gazette.

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat
At the first symptoms of sore throat, throat sprays used to soothe the inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

Two Irish farmers who had not seen each other for quite a long time met at a fair, and, of course, they had heaps of things to tell each other. "Shure, it's married I am," said Murphy. "You don't tell me so," said McElroy. "Faix, yes," answered Murphy, "an' I've got a foine healthy boy which the neighbors say is the very picture of me." McElroy looked for a moment at Murphy, and then said: "Och, well, what's the harm, so long as the bairn's healthy."

The self-made man was in a caustic mood. "These schools, ye know," he said, "they're no good. Don't give a boy no practical knowledge. See what meant? Now, my son, he's supposed to be learning Greek, an' Latin, an' algebra. An' the other day I asked 'im to tell me the algebra for frickin' fools, an' he couldn't."

"Pasha" is the only Turkish title conferred personally by the Sultan, and the only one which carries any precise rank.

Originally conferred to princes of the blood, it is now conferred on military men, governors, etc., whose rank and merit are sufficiently high.

All other titles—Aga, Bey, Effendi, etc.—are conventional additions to the name, and of no official rank.

Governors of provinces are Bey, so also is any person of rank, military or civil, and government officials. An Aga might be one occupying a confidential position in the Sultan's seraglio or merely a retired official, an army officer, or a big landowner.

Prof. A. R. Mann, of the New York State College of Agriculture, A Careful Observer, Considers the Problem in the Community Aspect, in an Article for the Banker-Farmer towns are the cross-roads of trade, the meeting place of business interests of all the farmers in the area head up and thus give employment to the townspeople. The average country town is primarily an agricultural distributing point, for the farmer and his family depend on the farmer on the one hand, and for the sale of his produce on the manufacturer of the farmer's produce on the other. If the farmers are thrifty, the townspeople are thrifty, and if the farmers are unthrifty, the towns are likely to be unthrifty. The thrift of the farms is the thrift of the towns. The country town has no outlet or escape from the farmer's necessities. Its commercial activities largely depend on or shoulder in the movement to good roads and for good railroad service. The townspeople are usually held in a town centre and are not free to go to the city. It is the board of managers, and take on the aspect of a real, helpful, stimulating body. The townspeople are not change and there will be new incentives for development in both town and country. The commercial interests in the towns are not in making the town, and all of its institutions and enterprises, serve to create the confidence on which the town's progress must depend. Dr. Robertson Makes a Personal Appeal to the Farmers For Aid in a Good Work

We publish today a second appeal on behalf of the Red Cross Society, by Dr. James W. Robertson.

Commenting on Admiral von Tirpitz's indignant denial of the report that German sailors were accustomed to toast "Der Tag," a Hull master mariner, in an interview with the Central News Hull correspondent, said:

"Some time ago."

In more recent years, Dr. Robertson was chairman of the royal commission on industrial training and technical education. Farmers in all provinces are familiar with the survey of farms by the commission of conservation and the illustration farms of its committee on lands, of which he is chairman.

appeal to farmers to send me their names and addresses by the week of May. Every 150 provides one additional hospital bed with the gift of $100.00. If you send me $100.00, you would serve your country and your fellow citizens. I will send you a letter and you can sign and make all of us very proud of you. For the sake of the wounded soldiers, please send me your money as an investment towards the recovery of our country. We are very proud in our stead that our cause is being helped. Sincerely, Paul H. When King Albert of Belgium, as Prince Albert, put aside his title and became a newspaper correspondent, he was sent to report on the situation in France, Austria, Britain, Scandinavia and the American continent, including Canada.

was able to study the commercial advantages of other countries, as well as broadening his views and educating his mind. In order that he should not be recognized during his expeditions King Albert grew a beard, wore glasses, and trimmed his hair in a new way. His disguise was so effective that many of his countrymen to whom he was a familiar figure passed him without recognition in the various countries he visited.

The man was employed by a Minneapolis newspaper as a copy boy for a salary of $15 a week. The king's employers were quite unaware of his identity, and when he returned with poor "copy" he was as badly hauled over the coals as were his less aristocratic colleagues. A story is told by his confidants of the way he endeavored to obtain copy.

Incident afterwards went up to the policeman and said, "Do you know that man you were speaking to was Albert Prince of the Belgians?" "I don't know," answered the policeman. "Mr. Prince should have shown his card, for I've never heard of that paper."

the reporting says King Albert volunteered to fight. He was connected with sports. As an all-around athlete he was especially qualified as an authority on outdoor sports such as clean box fence, net and swim. There are few subjects on which King Albert could not write a good article. He has a knowledge of all matters relating to shipbuilding, motor cars and aviation.

years ago at the Newspaper Press Fund dinner, said that the news of Napoleon's defeat first arrived here through the medium of a Dutch journal, which published it in a single line, "Great Victory of the English." # ECONOMIC REASONS WERE IN PART RESPONSIBLE FOR THE WORLD WAR

"The Germans have at Berlin the most complete bureau of information to be found anywhere in the world. They know everything and understand nothing. They had no measurement of the power of the Soviet Union, a nation such as that of the British empire," declared Mr. C. W. Barron, in his address before the Montreal Can-

Mr. Barron in the course of his address showed conclusively that economic conditions were not responsible for the outbreak of hostilities. Austria was anxious for war and was not measurably influenced by her Archduke as an excuse, although in the last analysis the ultimatum was not issued until the terms changed by the Kaiser to make it more difficult to fulfill. Austria was anxious to dominate the Balkans and threaten the Eastern Mediterranean. He also showed that a commercial treaty between Germany and Austria was not the cause of the Japanese war during which Russia was forced to accept German goods to the detriment of her own export to the bottom of the struggle between Germany

"This war," declared Mr. Barron, "will settle some thirty-five or thirty-six million people, and it will settle as great as the slavery question which was settled by the American Civil War."

The first great problem is, whether governments shall serve or rule. The second is, whether the League of Nations shall be a creature of the Tight of some nations, to exist for the benefit of all, or whether such are some of the other great problems which shall be settled by this conflict. It may be said that the world is divided into two camps, the kingdoms battling to settle the question whether Germany has ideas that are better than those of the rest of the world, and that the great problems will be settled. It is in the last analysis a conflict between the League of Nations and the League of German "Kaiser." The one is

On Sunday, June the 20th, the Oddfellows of Coleman and Blairmore will assemble at the Oddfellows' hall, Bellevue, preparatory to holding the annual memorial ceremonies. At Bellevue the members will form in procession and parade to the cemetery at Hillcrest, where the graves of deceased members, victims of the Hillcrest disaster, will be decorated with flowers. The Hillcrest disaster occurred on June the 19th last, so that the proceedings on the 20th will be of double importance. A large turnout is expected. After the ceremony the members will probably return to the hall at Bellevue where refreshments will be served.

A case of great importance to all interested in irrigation in Western Canada was heard before Judge Hyndman at Calgary recently. The suit arose out of the contention of a farmer named Babcock, who claimed that land he had purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company as irrigable land was not benefited by irrigation, and appealed to the courts for a revision of his land contract. The land in question is located in the C.P.R. irrigation block east of Calgary, and the object of the suit was to have all reference to irrigable land removed from the contract and the price reduced to that of non-irrigable land, and also to declare void the water agreement whereby the purchaser had agreed to pay an annual water rental of fifty cents an acre. The case occupied the attention of the court for three days, when Judge Hyndman, without calling any evidence on the company's behalf, declared a non-suit, and dismissed the case with costs.

The decision is one of the utmost importance, not only to residents of the irrigation block, but to all who are interested in the agricultural development of Western Canada, as it must put an effective quietus on the organized campaign that has been carried on by a few dissatisfied settlers to discredit this company's irrigation enterprises. The result is hailed with much satisfaction by practical irrigators, who have contended all along that southern Alberta affords one of the most suitable fields for irrigation development on this continent.
